Hello, my name is Anna. I am taking this class to learn how to use multiple Adobe programs for my future career goals. My dream is to become a Animator and Illustrator. My passion lies in art and I am hoping to be an amazing artist someday. I've always physically drawn my art, but this class has taught me how to operate the Adobe programs which I can now apply to my creations.

Photoshop was the first Adobe program I used in this class. This experience was new to me, so I was not sure if I was heading the right direction when creating the raster project. I had difficulties trying to make the collage of images look natural while merged together, but I was able to manage it which turned out pretty well. I choose the theme of the raster image to look this way because I think it reflects who I am and what I like.

Wolves Rain

For Illustrator, the creature I created was a wolf. I decided to choose this creature because it is one of my favorite animals and I personally identify myself with the spirit of a wolf. I started off by hand drawing the creature before using Illustrator. It was challenging while I was working on creating the shaggy outlines of the wolf's fur. Also, it was hard to make the vector images blend well with the photoshopped image.

It was satisfying in the end when I finished making my animation because I got to see the results of my time and effort put into creating this piece. Making this animation was difficult because sometimes I'd hit a brick wall on how to make my animation flow naturally and it took time for me to figure out how I wanted it to look like. This was the first time I made a animation and I enjoyed it although it was time consuming and challenging; I was able to learn something new.
